A Co-op Incubator and News Review Get Foundation Grants

by Altoria Bell Ross

The Good Book says “give and it shall be given to you; good measure, pressed down and shaken together, and running over.” That portion of verse aptly described the scene at the Greenbelt Community Foundation Awards Ceremony on July 13.

Carol Malveaux and Suzette Agans of the foundation gave outgoing County Councilmember Ingrid Turner a bouquet of flowers for her soul and a set of crystal, respectively, for her support to the foundation and to Greenbelt at large. However, the giving was not done. On behalf of the Prince George’s County Council, Councilmember Turner presented the foundation with a check for $25,000 because she said the organization would “turn it over two, three and four fold.”

As a testament to her statement, the foundation awarded two organizations with financial support for the spring cycle, the Greenbelt News Review and the Greenbelt Cooperative Incubator. The News Review will use the $4,960 grant funds to rethink and redesign the paper’s online presence. This project includes creating a design document, implementation plan, and mockups for a sustainable and extensible electronic News Review that complements but does not replace traditional print.

The cooperative incubator will employ the $5,000 to launch six new Greenbelt cooperatives. The project plans to obtain professional help to write bylaws and incorporate: Greenbelt Early Learning Co-op for Franklin Park; a Compost Co-op; Greenbelt Cinema Cooperative; Young Co-operators/Kids’ Co-op; Thrift Store Co-op; and Healthy Eco-Yards Co-op. The project will also provide technical assistance with start-up activities for the co-ops.

Early Learning Co-op

The mission of the Greenbelt Early Learning Co-op is to provide a safe, developmentally appropriate environment for preschool and school age children primarily in the Franklin Park neighborhood. The curriculum will support the development of each child’s cognitive, physical, social and emotional growth. The co-op is committed to building a strong community and a strong home/school partnership, embracing the diversity and uniqueness of each child, family and staff member.

Thrift Store Co-op

The mission of the proposed Thrift Store Co-op is to provide a place where people can find reasonably priced, quality clothes and other goods. In addition, the proposed store will provide a location for people to donate their gently used clothing and other goods. The creation of this store offers another way for people in Greenbelt to live sustainably.

Cinema Cooperative

The Greenbelt Cinema Cooperative’s (GCC) mission is to provide an alternative to the commercial film experience and to become a center for film in Prince George’s County. GCC is a worker cooperative supported by Friends of the Greenbelt Theatre. By creating a diverse programming schedule of independent, art house, repertory and educational content, the GCC will revitalize the theater as a cultural and social hub of Greenbelt. Through film series, classes, events and festivals, the GCC will be a place for experiencing the pleasure of watching films, as well as foregrounding film’s ability to bring communities together, to educate and to entertain.

2013 Outstanding Citizen Is Still Preserving History

by Lois Rosado

Each year an Outstanding Citizen award is presented to a Greenbelt citizen who has provided exemplary volunteer service. Greenbelt’s Outstanding Citizen of 2013 was Eric Zhang and, like the 40 other recipients of the award, he continues to give countless hours of unpublicized service.

When asked about his reaction to having been selected as 2013 Outstanding Citizen, Zhang said he was really surprised. As a relative newcomer to Greenbelt, he never expected this honor.

He had already met other Outstanding Citizens, like Mary Lou Williamson, Sylvia Lewis, John Henry Jones and David and Sandy Lange. All had had long histories of living, volunteering and contributing to Greenbelt. He figured he would not be selected.

Since receiving this award, Zhang continues to add to the photo history collection he began for the city’s 75th anniversary. In 2012, Zhang provided Greenbelt with tens of thousands of photos, creating a photographic record of all of the 75th anniversary events.

by Brian Compere

U.S. Census Bureau data showed in 2010 that the percentage of seniors in Greenbelt is a significantly smaller portion than the percentage of seniors in the state of Maryland and the United States as a whole.

The data show that the percentage of persons aged 65 or older is 7.5 percent in Greenbelt, compared to 12.3 percent in Maryland and 13 percent for the nation. Christal Batey, community resource advocate for the City of Greenbelt, presented some possible explanations for these data.

She said that most seniors in Greenbelt live in the old part of the town that encircles the Community Center and Roosevelt Center, whereas the East and West parts of Greenbelt attract a large percentage of Greenbelt’s younger residents. She also said that Greenbelt has no assisted living facilities, which is challenging because it means that people have to leave the city at some point.

Batey said that the Greenbelt Assistance in Living Program, which was started around 2000 and offers services aside from assisted living, has encouraged people

Doctors Hospital to Sponsor Greenbelt Farmers Market

by Cathie Meetre

The Greenbelt Farmers Market last week received a generous sponsorship donation from Doctors Community Hospital as part of the hospital’s initiative to contribute toward the wellness of the Greenbelt community. Doctors is moving toward a new initiative that focuses on wellness – including taking positive steps to improve the diet and exercise profiles of citizens in the city.

As part of the sponsorship, Doctors will have a booth at the market from time to time to offer information and non-invasive screenings as well as counseling on better nutrition habits and the benefits to health of fresh vegetables. Initiatives proposed include tours of market booths for visitors to explain which items contribute the most to the individual’s balanced diet. In addition, the hospital’s logo will be prominently displayed on the market’s website and messages from the hospital with information on wellness programs will be featured.

Greenbelter Jeff Lemieux, owner of Proteus Bikes, makes a smoothie from fruit sold at the market with a bicycle-powered blender.

Obesity is at epidemic proportions as a factor in the national health – and is a growing problem with children as well as adults. A sedentary lifestyle, junk food and sugary drinks and snacks are major causes. Doctors Hospital is putting its energies behind health oriented initiatives in the community to encourage citizens to thrive.

Another generous Market sponsor, Proteus Bikes, owned by Laurie and Jeff Lemieux of Greenbelt, used their sponsorship booth at the market to focus on the health benefits of good nutrition combined with regular exercise.

Letters to the Editor

Thanks to City And its Citizens

A huge thank you to the city, specifically Kenny Hall, who got on the issue of the lane confusion down at Crescent and Kenilworth right away. We now have repainted arrows and improved signage so there is clarity regarding who turns where.

I am most grateful for living in a city that is able to respond so quickly and appropriately. And a thanks to the citizens who sent emails, made calls, etc.

Now we need to work on that ramp from Southway to 295 South (call Hoyer's office please!).

Look Out for Animals Crossing the Streets

Last Monday evening around 5 p.m. I was heading toward Kenilworth on Crescent and I spotted an approximately 8" in diameter turtle crossing the road. "He" was in the other lane and a SUV (followed by another car) was coming the other way toward it. I pulled over ASAP to get it out of the road but before I could get out of the car I looked in my rear view mirror and saw something airborne. Yup, one of vehicles hit the turtle, propelling "him" into the air about 10' high for a distance of over 20 feet. The turtle was found motionless down in the cement stream! After about 15 minutes "he" was able to move and get under the bridge (thank God we have an animal shelter as this would have been the next place for "him" to have gone).

Many thanks to the people who stopped, especially "Amy" with her two kids who stayed with me until "he" seemed appropriately taken care of.

PLEASE slow down and be on the lookout on Crescent Road for any animals/reptiles/birds that may be crossing. We are very fortunate to live in such a green area; however, it does invite us to be good stewards of the space where we tread by foot or tire.

I still think animal crossing signs would be great; however, don't know if people would pay them any mind.

Try Some WD-40

In reference to your July 10 "Letters to the Editor" I want to thank the editor for giving me the best laugh all day at the editor's response to Bill Norwood complaint about the carts at the Co-op. I have shopped there for years and years and never got a bum cart. It was stated in the letter that Norwood wheels the cart home and the editor responded "Perhaps the carts would hold up better if they were left at the store and not wheeled home." Keep up the good work.

P.L. Wolfinger

P.S. Next time visiting the store bring with you a can of WD-40 and spray on the wheels. PAM would probably work just as well!!

Trash Is Removed

I'm a lifelong Greenbelter living in GHI for more than 60 years next to our beautiful Forest Preserve. Thanks to Kristin Fletcher for her timely and eye-opening letter of last week's News Review, which 'blew away' the credibility of Willis Witter's claims in his letter of the same issue, where he made misleading statements and false accusations by twisting what Forest Preserve Advisory Board chair, Bob Snyder, actually said in his July 3 letter.

Trash clean-ups have been a Greenbelt tradition by various citizen groups and individuals for decades; and enjoying the woods is encouraged, as indicated by the well-attended educational events that have been sponsored in the Forest Preserve – all free of charge.

I was shocked when Witter informed us in his letter that he is a member of the FPAB. Why would anyone want to volunteer to serve on a city advisory board to then be subjected to contentious behavior by a member who condemns fellow board members publicly with distortions, which seem to serve only one purpose – to inflame!

Repair Café At Club125

Club125 will host the third quarterly Repair Café event this Saturday, July 19 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. The Repair Café is a free community service offered by a volunteer staff to help people repair their damaged or broken goods. For the day, Club125 will be converted into multiple repair stations. Each station will focus on different types of objects: clothing and fabric items, computers, small appliances and electronics, jewelry, furniture and bicycle tuning and repair.

At prior events, more than 75 items were repaired at a 95% success rate. Repair Café is made possible in part by Club125's receipt of the Greenbelt Consumer Co-op's Jim Cassels Award and an eager supporting army of volunteers.

To learn more, see <http://club125.com/cafe>. Club125 is located at Roosevelt Center adjacent to the Old Greenbelt Theatre.

Summer Doubles A Smash Hit

The Greenbelt Tennis Association sponsored a doubles tournament on July 12-13. There were 40 participants competing in three categories. The high heat and humidity did not hinder these intrepid players!

In the Men’s ‘A’ category, hometown favorites Charlie Murphy/Chris Bonnell won the championship against the finalists Greg Rothwell /Nick Nayak with a score of 6-4, 4-5 retired (injury of Nayak).

The Open ‘B’ category was dominated by the family teams of Greg and Julie Gerhardt (husband and wife) champions against finalists Mike and Matt Scianella (father and son) with a score of 7-5, 6-2.

The Open ‘C’ category was won by Michael Mason/Cheng-Hsuan Lyu against finalists Terry Henderson/Emmett Jordan. Yes, the Greenbelt mayor was paired up with the GTA president but good heartedness wasn’t enough to carry them through to a championship. The score was 6-1, 7-5.

Please congratulate champions, finalists and all of the other players who made this Summer Doubles Tournament one of the best ever! To see all of the scores, visit our website: www.greenbelt.com/tennis. The Summer Singles Tournament will be held on August 16-17.

Condolences to the family and friends of Darrington J. Roan, who died on July 8. She and her late husband Edwin were longtime Boxwood residents.

Greenbelters were saddened to hear of the death of former Lakeside resident Valerie Siegel, 70, in Edgewater, Md., on July 3. Deepest sympathy to her children Shelly Siegel and Sean Arthurs and to all members of the family of her late husband Hal Siegel. Valerie was a lawyer and former assistant state's attorney for Prince George's County and more recently a hospital chaplain. A memorial service is being planned for late summer.

Congratulations to:

— Kathy Labukas, who has just returned from Spain where she and John Ryan walked over 425 miles, from Pamplona to Santiago, on the Camino de Santiago. The walk took 36 days and is part of the Way of St. James the Apostle pilgrimage. At night they stayed in hotels (more like dormitories) called albergues.

— Joanne (Scott) Kennedy and her husband Bob, of Toano, Va., who celebrated their 65th wedding anniversary. They were married July 16, 1949, by St. Hugh's founding pastor Rev. Victor Dowgiallo, at the old Holy Redeemer church (now Feely Hall) in Berwyn. Joanne is a Greenbelt pioneer, the sister of this reporter, Kathleen McFarland.

— Roderick C. Lucas of Greenbury Drive, who is a rising junior at The Citadel, The Military College of South Carolina. Roderick received dean's list recognition for the spring 2014 semester: Dean's list recognition is given to those students registered for 12 or more semester hours whose grade point average is 3.2 or higher with no grade below a C. Roderick also recently returned from a Spanish immersion program held in Spain and sponsored by The Citadel, where he received highest honors. Roderick is a 2012 ERHS graduate.

— Stan Zirkin, who was named Advising Attorney of the Year by the Employment Justice Center (EJC), Washington, D.C., an organization devoted to assisting low-income workers with employment-related problems. Zirkin has been volunteering at EJC's law clinic since November 2012. In announcing the award in an e-mail, the Executive Director of EJC noted that the award was made by the EJC staff "unanimously" and "enthusiastically" and that the selection of Zirkin was a "no-brainer" for all concerned. Zirkin has been a Greenbelt resident since 1969 and is a copy editor for the News Review.

— The Greenbelt S.I.T.Y. Stars Jump Rope team, which is traveling to Hong Kong at the end of July to participate in an international jump rope competition. Three jumpers and the coach will be competing in the tournament. Best of luck!

Send us your reports of new babies, awards, honors, etc. to share with our readers. We'd especially like to hear more from neighbors in Greenbelt East and Greenbelt West (Franklin Park). To send information for Our Neighbors, email us at newsreview@verizon.net or leave a message at 301-474-6892.

Many of us want to make minor or major dietary changes for any number of reasons, but we struggle with how to make short-term or long-term change. How can we make it easier and succeed?

What spiritual aspects apply, and how can they help?

Eight O’Clock Coffee Staff Partners with Magnolia School

by Demetrice Bettis

Magnolia Elementary School’s creative environment teaching project received the support of a local corporate partner, Eight O’ Clock Coffee of Landover, Md. In an effort to continue its commitment of implementing innovative environmental teaching and learning at Magnolia Elementary School, on Thursday, June 5, 2014, Eight O’Clock of Landover brought staff to forge the corporate partnership of World Environment Day with Magnolia Elementary School.

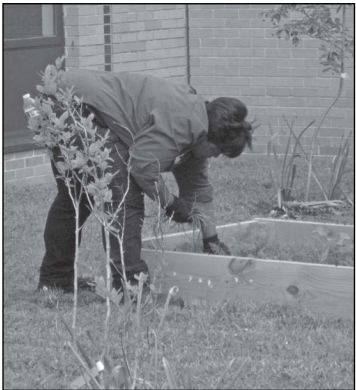

During this event, Eight O’ Clock Coffee, a subsidiary of TATA Global Beverages, assisted in the installation of an irrigation system for the Outdoor Classroom Garden courtyard and cleaned another courtyard. Participating in this effort were Reginald Davis, vice president of operations; Rahul Khound, director of operations; Lynell Johnson, manager of human resources; Tanya Bryan, engineering project manager; Elsie Wade, coordinator of human resources; Lester Dickerson, maintenance manager; and Shimia Hutchins, administrative assistant.

According to Johnson, the company annually supports the corporate initiative of World Environment. Employees left their office in Lanham armed with gardening tools, recycling trash

Don Rich Reelected President of PWPS

At its monthly meeting in May, the Patuxent Widowed Persons Service (PWPS) held elections for officers who will serve two-year terms beginning in September. Greenbelter Don Rich will continue as president of the group, which serves widowed men and women from Prince George’s County.

After completing the sessions, participants are invited to join the larger PWPS group, which holds monthly meetings with speakers and offers social activities. Widowed people who have not gone through the support sessions also are welcome to join the larger group.

The group’s annual picnic will take place August 23 at the New Carrollton Municipal Center. Monthly meetings resume in September.

to “try to remain independent as long as possible” and stay in Greenbelt. The percentage of seniors in Greenbelt rose from 6.73 percent since 2000, according to 2010 U.S. Census data obtained from greenbelt.areaconnect.com.

Greenbelt residents’ reactions to the 2010 data ranged from surprise to agreement with the data’s accuracy. While Jackie Royster described the data as “about right,” Miriam Goldfarb said, “Really! I thought it would be double! I thought Greenbelt would be a mecca for older folks!”

Pauline Bordas, who first moved to Greenbelt when she was 14 years old, said that there are “quite a number of seniors” in Greenbelt, which she described as a “great town to live in.” She said that the city has good facilities for both young and old and most children who live in Greenbelt end up staying when they get older.

Goldfarb had a different perspective: She said that her daughter calls Greenbelt an “old people’s town,” and wants to leave when possible. Goldfarb also said that there are plenty of services available for the old, as well as factors of the community like walkability, that would make Greenbelt a good place for her to retire.

Julie Meyer, of the U.S. Census Bureau, said that one factor in the comparatively low percentage could be a large proportion of younger residents. She said that there may be people from the university or even from immigration contributing to the higher population of younger people.

“You see a lot of young families and kids here,” Royster said. “There are a lot of nice little starter homes. It’s inviting for young families to start here.”

Film Screening: Harvest of Empire

On Monday, July 21, Reel & Meal at the New Deal Café will present a free screening of Harvest of Empire: The Untold Story of Latinos in America, at the New Deal Café in Roosevelt Center at 7 p.m. This 2012 film provides background on the current crisis of Central American children who have crossed the U.S. border to escape violence at home, a story largely unknown to the great majority of citizens in the U.S.

Joan Marie Conway, a retired (USDA) nutrition scientist who has worked in direct food-pantry service to the immigrant families of Silver Spring and Langley Park for 12 years, will lead a discussion after the screening. She will relate her experiences with immigrant children and her petition for justice as the Purple Line is built through Langley Park, home to thousands of Latin American immigrants.

At a time of heated and divisive debate over immigration, this documentary by Peter Getzels and Eduardo López reveals the direct connection between the long history of U.S. intervention in Latin America and the immigration crisis we face today. From the wars for territorial expansion that gave the U.S. control of Puerto Rico, Cuba and more than half of Mexico, to the covert operations that imposed oppressive military regimes in the Dominican Republic, Guatemala, Nicaragua and El Salvador, the film depicts how U.S. economic and military interests have triggered this unprecedented wave of migration.

The film explores how America's push to open new countries for capitalist ventures and its military intervention fueled unrest in Central America, positioning the U.S. border as a safe haven.

Harvest of Empire features present day immigrant stories, rarely seen archival material, as well as interviews with such respected figures as Nobel Peace Prize Laureate Rigoberta Menchú, the Reverend Jesse Jackson, ACLU Executive Director Anthony Romero, Pulitzer Prize-winning writer Junot Díaz, Mexican historian Dr. Lorenzo Meyer, journalists María Hinojosa and Geraldo Rivera, Grammy award-winning singer Luis Enrique and poet Martín Espada. For more details about the film see <http://harvestofempiremovie.com>.

Reel & Meal series is a collaboration of three Greenbelt affinity groups: Green Vegan Networking, Beaverdam Creek Watershed Watch Group and Prince George's County Peace & Justice Coalition. For more information on programs, contact justpeacepg@earthlink.net or 301-577-2350.

photos and writing captions,” he says. “Greenbelt is too interesting a city to be captured in one year. I have been adding to that project, documenting events I was not able to go to and visiting residents and organizations I was not able to visit during the anniversary year.”

Zhang gave a slide presentation for the Greenbelt Rotary Club after receiving his award and of course was able to take photos of the group’s breakfast meeting. He still walks around the city taking pictures.

“I hope to continuously add to the collection and make it more comprehensive, he says. This city sure has a lot to offer.”

Selection Committee

A diverse committee of Greenbelt residents selects the Outstanding Citizen based on nominations submitted by the Greenbelt community. Zhang’s nominating petition contained 199 names.

Included were many comments by nominators and supporters, such as “In 2012 our 75th anniversary year – a single person performed a Herculean task that documented in words and images an entire year of life in Greenbelt. That person was Eric Zhang. Quietly, meticulously, generously, Zhang focused on the small and large details of our city every day, rain or shine, day after day.”

Another wrote: “We are honored and forever grateful that this young man chose to channel his talents and unique vision to focus on Greenbelt.” One last comment about Zhang was that “He has been one of the most dedicated, cooperative and unselfish individuals I have ever had the pleasure of meeting.”

His blog highlighting the 75th anniversary of Greenbelt can be accessed online at www.greenbelt2012.wordpress.com.

News Review Website

In relation to new activities, while researching back issues of the News Review, Zhang discovered the paper’s website made issues available from 1937 and then from 2002 onwards in a pdf format. Unfortunately issues from 1938 to 2001 are not available on the website. To find these issues he went to the Tugwell Room in the Greenbelt Library. After more inquiries, he learned the News Review had these issues in a tiff file format. Zhang volunteered to help digitize those missing News Review issues. He was given the 17,200 tiff files on two DVDs. “This past April, I worked to put these 17,200 tiff files together into pdf files, with one file per issue,” he says. “In the end 3,243 issues, from 1937 to 2000 were created (some issues are missing). I have given these files to the News Review and hopefully they can be put online soon.”

“When that happens, thanks to the comprehensiveness of the News Review, one can look up dates, events and people in Greenbelt’s 75-year history much more easily and one can do that in the comfort of one’s home anytime. Personally, when I worked to put together the files, I enjoyed looking through the back issues, especially those letters to the editor.”

When asked if he had comments to share with the Greenbelt community, he said simply: “Again, thank you so very much for bestowing this great honor on me.”

Honestly, I think Zhang is still cataloging the history of Greenbelt, still being an Outstanding Citizen.

Award

The Outstanding Citizen award is bestowed annually during the opening ceremonies of the Labor Day Festival. While a committee will select the 2014 Outstanding Citizen, that selection is made from nominations submitted by you, the community. If you submitted a nomination for someone previously, support that person again, be persistent and add as many support letters as you can. While only one person is designated as Greenbelt’s Outstanding Citizen each year, there is no doubt that every nominee has greatly contributed to the great quality of life in Greenbelt.

Your help is needed to identify the 2014 Outstanding Citizen. Submit a nomination form from this paper or elsewhere, explaining why the individual deserves recognition. Attach a brief statement listing the organizations and/or activities of the nominee, specifying his or her accomplishments, length of service, impact on Greenbelt or its residents and the personal qualities that make this person special.

Nomination forms and support letters are due by Monday, July 28. They must be signed by the person submitting the nomination. A nomination form is available on this page. Include your phone number and address and send the form to: Bob Zugby, Chair, at 94 Ridge Road, Greenbelt, MD 20770.

CHILD PORNOGRAPHY

Failure to communicate is the best way to ensure increases in CP and child abuse in Greenbelt. More users and abusers were themselves abused as children. Let’s break this cycle.

Kids’ Co-op
The 12-week “Young Co-operators” pilot program for fall 2014 will introduce Greenbelt boys and girls ages 10-14 to cooperative living and working while also helping them adopt healthy, active lifestyles. To accomplish this, it will help area youth plan and operate their own business co-op to sell smoothies at area farmers markets and other venues. They will fabricate a bicycle trailer to haul their smoothie stand to the markets and use their bikes to blend the smoothies’ locally sourced and fairly traded ingredients. This hands-on business experience will be combined with weekly management meetings and workshops, field trips and retreats to help them learn about and incorporate subject matter ranging from nutrition, local food systems, sustainable transportation and STEM, to cooperatives, dynamic governance, entrepreneurship, job-readiness, personal finance and philanthropy. The program will culminate with a public presentation of their accomplishments and a business plan for the 2015 smoothie-selling season. This program is believed to be unique in its design, scale and scope. It is not affiliated with a national youth organization nor are there local programs offering a similar medley of content or activities. It was inspired by the erstwhile Gum Drop Co-op, Greenbelt’s very first co-op, founded in 1937.

Eco Yards Cooperative
The Healthy Eco Yards Cooperative (HEYCO) is a new hybrid worker-consumer-research co-op whose mission is to support healthy food for humans and wildlife in this era of climate change. HEYCO wants to create landscapes that are beautiful to live in, while reducing polluted run-off into water ways and providing both community food harvests and wildlife habitat. HEYCO will provide landscapers with democratically governed work while also helping educate the community about the benefits of composting (whether in a person’s yard, neighborhood, or at a community facility). Working within the new paradigm that redefines waste management as resource recovery, the co-op’s goal is the diversion of local food scraps from landfill disposal to local production of compost for use in creating healthy local landscapes. The co-op is developing a low-fossil fuel model, in which all work at our local composting facility would be done with hand tools and/or renewable energy sources. The composting facility (or facilities) will be no larger than 5,000 square feet, in order to remain within the state’s regulations. The co-op is currently planning a pilot project with one location and plans only to develop additional facilities within the Greenbelt vicinity to keep the co-op hyper-local. The co-op is looking to develop a replicable model that is sustainable within such a hyper-local setting and wishes to assist and support other such small composting co-ops to establish parallel operations in their own communities. The co-op is exploring developing in tandem with other land-based co-ops in Greenbelt, such as a sustainable landscaping business, a plant nursery and/or mini-farm.

Greenbelter Stan Zirkin Is Honored For His Post-Retirement Work

by James Giese

In January 1970, Stan Zirkin, a resident of Greenbelt and copy editor for the News Review, joined the National Labor Relations Board in Washington, D.C. as a staff attorney. He had no intention of ever seeing the inside of a courtroom since he lacked confidence, was terrified of public speaking and had a debilitating stammer. The deal he struck with the agency was that he would write briefs and other attorneys in his office would argue the cases.

This arrangement lasted for four cases. Then his supervisor, the late Warren Davison, asked Zirkin to go outside his comfort zone and try an oral argument. He said “just argue one case. If you don’t like it you don’t have to do it anymore because other attorneys are happy to pick up arguments.” Zirkin reluctantly accepted the challenge and went to Cincinnati to argue a case before the United States Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit. He drank a lot of water but he was so nervous he could not retain any moisture in his mouth.

When he started the argument he “clicked” rather than spoke to the panel. “But I didn’t die,” observed Zirkin, “and I won the case.” As Zirkin continued to argue cases his confidence grew and the stammer slowly disappeared.

Another bizarre twist of fate led Zirkin to trial work. He was arguing a motion, which normally did not require an evidentiary hearing. Opposing counsel, however, refused to agree to clearly undisputed facts and forced Zirkin to conduct a “mini-trial.” He didn’t have a clue on how to proceed but had an experienced witness who led him through what could have been a disaster. When he returned to Washington and relayed his story (still with a slight stammer), Davison asked him if he would like to try a “real case.” Zirkin nearly collapsed at the thought; however, since he had overcome his fear of oral arguments, he accepted the new challenge. He had a superb mentor who taught him trial skills. Halfway through a difficult lengthy trial, he had an epiphany. As Zirkin stated, “During a successful cross examination I was conducting I realized that I loved trial work and wanted to do this type of work the rest of my career.”

Zirkin went on to try 43 cases, all of which he won. He settled hundreds of other cases. In 2006 the American Bar Association recognized his career achievements by making him a co-recipient of the first annual Federal Labor and Employment Attorney of the Year award.

Zirkin retired from the federal government in January 2013 but continued his law practice with a D.C. non-profit organization devoted to assisting low-income workers with employment related problems – The Employment Justice Center (EJC). In July 2014, Zirkin was named “Advising Attorney of the Year” by EJC, which the executive director stated was a “no-brainer” decision. A long journey indeed from a shy stammerer to a powerhouse trial attorney.
